

With the on-going technological revolution, the human-machine interaction is deeply evolving. Ridge-valley features are important elements in point clouds that can intuitively sketch the basic shape of objects.